Expert in the application of artificial intelligence, ethical AI and human-machine interaction

Klara Krieg

Klara Krieg combines the worlds of engineering and artificial intelligence – not only through her academic career, but also in her current role as Technology Specialist at Microsoft. She previously worked as AI Program Manager for Generative AI at Bosch. Before that, she worked in Silicon Valley on AI and large language models, gaining valuable international insights into the latest developments in the industry. Her passion lies in making the complex world of AI tangible and understandable. Klara Krieg believes that technological knowledge and practical application must go hand in hand to create real value. However, her work goes beyond…
