Global Futurist for Technology, Society & Strategy

Ben Hammersley

Ben Hammersley is internationally recognised as one of the world's leading futurists and the founder of Hammersley Futures, a strategic foresight consultancy advising corporations, governments and institutions on how to navigate an increasingly complex future. His work focuses on how societies respond to technological change — from the evolution of work, markets and power structures to emerging forms of conflict, security and the cognitive skills needed to thrive in the decades ahead. Over the course of his career, Hammersley has built an unusually broad and interdisciplinary background. He has served as Executive Editor of WIRED, reported as a war correspondent…
