

Prof. Dr. Hans-Werner Sinn

Prof. Dr. Hans-Werner Sinn is an economist whose expertise makes him one of the most research-intensive German-speaking economists. He is a university lecturer at Ludwig Maximilian University in Munich and was President of the Ifo Institute for Economic Research from 1999 to 2016. He has shaped the economic and social policy debates in Germany and Europe like no other in recent decades. Sinn is considered a generalist within economics. His research focuses on taxation, regulation, the labour market, the environment, growth and exhaustible resources, foreign trade, banking, insurance and risk, climate and energy, demography and social security, macroeconomics, system competition and...

Topics

Climate Change, Environment & Energy, CSR, Climate & Sustainability, Globalization, Politics, Policies & Economy, Society

Languages

English, German

